CURRENT SPORTING TALK.

SENSATIONAL VICTORY OF PUBILIST JOE WALCOTT DISCUSSED.

Friends of the Colored Phenomenon Believe He Can Whip Corbett and McCoy-Busy Times Ahead for Him-More Bluffing by Joe Walcott's sensational victory over Joe Choynski was the chief topic discussed by sporting men yesterday, and those who stayed away from the Broadway A. C. because they had been led to believe that the fight would be "a farce" scored those who circulated the report with extreme severity. Naturally, having conquered Choynski, the colored pugilist possesses increased confidence in his ability to battle in the heavyweight class while many of his friends believe that he can whip such noted boxers as Corbett and McCoy, both of whom are patterned after Choynski in build and style. Walcott challenged McCov. it will be remembered, immediately after the Kid beat Dan Creedon in fifteen rounds two years ago. McCoy promptly drew the color line, and it is said of him now that he has not changed his mind. McCoy could not knock Creedon out in fifteen rounds, although when the Australian's seconds threw up the sponge the latter was in great distress. Walcott put Creedon to sleep a year ago in one round. McCoy was virtually stopped by Choynski in two rounds a few weeks ago, but was saved by a blunthe timekeeper at the Broadway A. C., and in the next round he succeeded in knocking the Californian cold. Walcott practically knocked Choynski out in the first round on Friday night, the Californian being helpless when the bell ended the round and af forded a minute's rest. Choynski had previously polished off Maher in a six-round bout after the Isishman had been stopped by McCoy on New Year's Day. Figuring it out in this manner, it would seem that a match between Walcott and McCoy could not be declared unequal. O'Rourke, who was so confident that Walcott was able to whip Choynski, has also said repeatedly that the "Black Demon" can beat McCov, so that the latter, instead of challenging and then dodging Fitzimmons by making another match with Sharkey, who has already knocked the Kid out in ten rounds, might convince the sporting pub-lic of his alleged superiority over Walcott by taking the latter on. O'Rourke also believes that Walcott can beat Corbett, the man who is matched to fight Jeffries for the championship. In the past Corbett met Choynski three times. The first bout was stopped by the police at the expiration of four rounds; in the second Corbett scored a knock out in twenty seven rounds, and in the third Choynski lost the decision in four rounds. Although Choynski has tried repeatedly to make another match with "Pompadour Jim." he has been religiously ignored. Corbett was beaten by Sharkey a year ago when Jim's second, McVey, jumped through the ropes, and Sharkey has fought Choynski to a draw in eight rounds. Knocked out by Fitzsimmons, who weighed 156's pounds. Corbett had at the time no excuse to make as to his physical Now-a-days Corbett is not looked upon as the same man, physically, who fought trim. Now-a-days Corbett is not looked upon as the same man, physically, who fought Fitzsimmons, and for that reason Walcott's friends hel sure that the latter's rugged strength and tremendous fighting power would prove too much for the "gentleman boxer." Possibly a match between Walcott and Maher, who has gone back, as shown by his contests lately with McCoy and Choynski, might be of interest if both McCoy and Choynski, might be of interest if both McCoy and Corbett should see fit to draw the convenient color line. But to pit the colored wonder against any other heavyweight Jeffries, Sharkey, Fitzsimmons or Ruhlin—would be considered, perhaps, to be stretching a point a trifle too far While prospective matches of this kind are under discussion. Walcott has been matched to meet once more his old rival, "Mysterious Billy." Smith, who is the recognized welterweight champion just now. Smith has fought two draws with Walcott, one of fifteen rounds and the other of twenty-five, and he has also received a decision over Joe in a twenty-round bout. Walcott has always had the utmost respect for Smith, who, by the way, was anxious to take Choynski's place on Friday night while the latter was kicking over the traces. Smith is seven inches taller than Walcott, but both scale at about 145 pounds when in their best trum. Smith is also one of the roughest pugilists in the profession and in this respect he has outclassed Walcott in all of their encounters, which has positily made the colored man slightly wary. As The Sun has pointed out, Walcott is more effective against pugilists larger than himself in every way because they cannot very well get to his body. The stom ach blows Joe received in his memorable light with Kid Lavigne, the former lightweight champion came near beating him down, as did similar treatment at the hands of Tommy West and Smith, but no pugilist has ever succeeded in Smith, but no puglist has ever succeeded in approaching a knock-out by landing a blow on Walcutt's head. Tommy Ryan 1 Syracuse is another man whom Walcutt would like to tackle. another man whom walcott would list to tackle. Ryan is out of the wellerweight class and is now devoting his time to middleweights, but when he had a chance to meet Walcott list fall for a big purse he hid his head under his wing and shut up like an oyster. Ryan cannot draw the color line, because he has already met and defeated the "Harlem Coffee Color." Altegether there appears to be an interesting schedule ahead to be played through by the Barbadoes phenomenon. Walcott, incedentally, owes much to the expert handling of O'Rourke. The latter un doubtedly told Joe how to tackle both Creedon and Choynski, for both of these men were subjected to the same kind of attack—a rush, a mix-up, a atorm of terrific punches and quick knock downs that scattered their thoughts and put them out of it from a mental point of view. Walcott has always believed implicitly in O'Rourke and will tackle any job the latter may see fit to frame up for him. Ryan is out of the welterweight class and is Unable to frighten the Brooklyn Baltimore baseball syndicate with threats of "throw-downs" and "freeze-outs," the broad minded clique that is directing the affairs of the National League has hit upon a new plan of attack. Somebody has discovered that Willie Keeler did not sign a Brooklyn contract until last season was nearly over and that a majority of the games played by the Superbas were illegal becase of the existence of the rule that no player can include in more than five games without signing a contract. From one of Brush's agents comes a wall that the League could justly deprive the Brooklyns of the pennant on this alleged technicality, and, although the League directors have already officially awarded the pennant to the champions, their action can be Unable to frighten the Brooklyn Baltimore the pennant to the champions, their action can be rescinded. As a matter of fact, Keeler signed a regular contract and got his signed. rescinded. As a matter of fact, keeler signed a regular contract and got his salary on the regular pay days, so such a ridiculous argument is unworthy of repetition. But it is indicative of a feeling of jealousy that exists among the magnates who cannot have champion balt teams for the asking. It is not far out of the way to say that the championship won by the Brooklyns so cleverly last year is the direct cause for some of the malignant attacks aimed at the Brooklyn-Baltimore syndicate.

Freedman and Brush are persecuting players information that the salaries offered were beneath their notice. As Freedman will not accede to their demands these players must remain out of the business in which they have secured a livelihood until they see fit to bow the knee. Brush is pursuing similar tactics with Hawley and Selbach, who must retire, too, unless they consent towallow bitter medicine. New York and Cincinnati, since their ball clubs passed into the hands of these magnates, have never cut much of a figure in the championship race, and baseball critics aver that there will never be a pennant in either city until radical changes in the management of the teams are made. ment of the teams are made ment of the teams are made.

A prominent League catcher, in telling the following story to The Sun reporter recently, well illustrated the feeling that usually exists between veteran professionals and young bloods, especially collegians who are grafted into the teams.

"Last year a certain college putcher was signed by the club with which I was playing," said the catcher, "and he was so swelled up the old players took offence. He wouldn't listen to advice and also refused to associate with us at all. One day we were playing the Philadelphias and this young man was in the box. The Philadelphias had the bases filled in the sixth inning with two out, the score 3 to 0 in our favor and Delahanty at the bat. The college boy had been getting away with the big hitters because I had correctly tipped their weak points to him, but he soon thought that he knew enough himself to do the signing instead. So when I gave a sign for a ball I thought Delahanty couldn't hit safely, the pitcher shook his head. I walked down to the box and said:

""Well, what's the matter?"

"Mr. Catcher, replied the collegian with a look of disdain, 'you do not know your business. Just you go back behind the bat, held your hands out like a mere mechanic and catch the bail. I will attend to the brain work here. I intend to pitch Mr. Delahanty a high, fast, straight ball close in to his neck! I'm positive he cannot hit it! Hurry back there, Mr. Catcher, and do not argue with me, for 'its useless!"

"As I walked back to my position I was hot

As I walked back to my position I was hot he collar. I. I said to the great batter, 'look out for a high, fast, straight one in to the neck!"
"Delahanty stepped back as the ball was pitched and hit it over the fence for a homer. That night the President of the club took a rush at the collegian and gave him his walking peners."

Considerable satisfaction is expressed by college men that Yale has consented to meet the Carlisle Indians once more on the football field. When the redmen were unable to secure a date with Yale hast year it was said that the New Haven men purposely avoided another conflict because of the formidable strength displayed by the Indians in 1898. But the real reason for the crossing off of Carlisle was the arrangement of the match between Yale and Wisconsin, which completely filled the schedule. As Wisconsin cannot come East again this fall, Yale has, therefore, graciously extended the hand of friendship to the plucky Carlisle men. The game cannot be played in this city, however, unless Columbia receives acceptable terms for the use of Manhattan Field from the New York Baseball Club.

The first woman baseball magnate on record i The first woman baseball magnate on record is Mrs. George A. Van der Beck of Detroit, who holds a franchise in the American League. Yesterday the Court confirmed the sale of the club and Mrs. Van der Beck is expected to attend the next meeting of the American League. Some persons are unkind enough to say that she is fortunate in not being compelled to attend one of the sessions of Freedman's National League.

Play at Lakewood and Laurence Harbo -Championship Chances.

In view of the annual meeting of the U.S. G. A. on Wednesday night there is a somewhat active canvass going on to influence the delegates of the associate clubs in their votes for the choice of championship links. Both the Chicago Golf Club and the Midlothian Club of the Western associate clubs would like to secure the open championship, and the fact that the titleholder, Willie Smith, is employed in the West may influence the votes The sentiment of the Western professionals is against the East having the event again this year. In a letter to THE SUN, A. C. Tallifson, professional of the Lake Geneva Country Club expresses the views of the Western profes-expresses the views of the Western profes-sionals as follows.

"I see there are many discussions as to where the open championship will be held. With the majority of the Western professionals, I favor the Chicago Golf Club at Wheaton. I believe the course the best in the West, if not in the United States, and, furthermore, as the East had the event last year, I sincerely hope that this year the championship will be held in the West."

had the event last year, I sincerely hope that this year the championship will be held in the West."

The Myopia Hunt Club, which now has a fine eighteen-hole course near Boston, is also an applicant for the open championship. The Golf Club of Lakewood is also an applicant for either of the championships, but it seems to be conceded that the amateur championship will go to Garden City. A few think, however, that either the amateur or the open event should go to the St. Andrew's Club, where the links is now in fine shape and compels a bold and dashing game. The selection for the women's championship rests between the Baltuscol and the Shinnecock Hills links. Regarding the latter course. H. G. Trevor said yesterday:

"We offer one of the finest eighteen-hole courses in the country to the women players and in the best possible condition. Besides, we have a relief course of nine holes on which some of the minor competitions may be held, without interfering in any way with the championship rounds. Our club will supplement the regular prizes with a splendid assortment of prizes in the minor bandicaps, mixed four-ting competitions. The Shinnecock Hills troit Club has a wide reputation for hospitality, and, aside from the entertainment of the competitors during the playing hours, the residents will give a round of dinners and dances in their honor. The hotel and boarding house accommodations at Southampton are ample, while the club members will also entertain house parties. We showed in 1886, when Whigham won, that we knew how to run an amateur championship, and now we want to show what we can do at Shinnecock Hills with the women's championship.

GLEN COVE, Feb. 24 - A good-sized field took advantage of the mild weather to-day and went over the course of the Nassau Country Club in the Busby cup handleap. The cards turned in were:

HARMONY AMONG ATBLETES. Collegians Elect Officers and Transact Other

Business Without a Hitch. The twenty-fifth annual meeting of the Intercollegiate A.A.A.A., held at the Fifth Avenue Hotel yesterday afternoon, was conducted with such celerity and harmony that it stands out as the most remarkable gathering in the history of the organization. In previous years the annual convention of the collegiate athletic legislators has provoked acrimonious discussion. usually lasting until late in the evening. Yesterday everything appeared to be cut and in less than one hourafter the chairman, Keith Donaldson of Princeton, called the meeting to order. Parlor D. R. was filled with representatives of the universities who attended in an advisory capacity, but only the following ac-credited delegates were allowed to vote:

lege: R. L. Brownheld, Swarthmore College: J. W. Farley, Syracuse University: E. M. Eldridge, Wesleyan University: C. N. Stoddard, Williams College, and Bascomb Johnson, Yale University.

After the resignation of Trinity College was accepted Oliver Shiras, the manager of the championship games held last spring, made his report. It showed that the total receipts were $2.25.7.91 against expenditures of $779.25, leaving the snug surplus of $1.478.20. The prosperous balance sheet enabled the association to declare a dividend of $10 to each college represented by teams at the championship meeting, thus offsetting their dues to the association.

The recommendations of the Executive Committee were next considered. The one of most interest was that to reinstate the University of California to membership. The Californians have not taken part in an intercollegiate meet since 1895, when a strong team came East, including a brace of hurdlers that showed a few tricks to the local traiters. After this the manager of the California team made disparaging remarks regarding the conduct of athletics in the East and the amateur status of those who competed in the championships. These statements have since been repudiated by the university and harmony restored. Under the constitution the Pacific coast university was dropped because of non-representation in the championship meets. The fact that Benjamin Ide Wheeler, who was chairman of the Cornell Athletic Committee, is now President of the University of California, had much weight with the delegates in considering the question of reinstatement. It is believed that with Wheeler at the head of affairs the university will have no difficulty in complying with the constitution in future by sending a team of at least three men to the championship each year. The reinstatement was agreed to by a unanimous vote. Brown University dropped for the same cause, was also reinstated.

The recommendation to present to W. B. Curtis, who has officiated without recompense followed and the smooth manne

A G Mason, Harvard, President: F M. Cohleman, Haverford, and J E. Moore, Georgetown, Vice-Presidents, W A. Young, N. w. York, University, Secretary: W R. Quinn, Columpital University, Treasurer, Executive Committee: J. D. Dana, Yale: A. G. Mason, Harvard: H. H. Langenberg Princeton, and
C L. McKeenan, University of Pennsylvania. C. L. McKeehan, University of Pennsylvania.

A motion to adjourn was made and carried immediately, shutting off further discussion on any subject. An old Princeton graduate, who attends every meeting of the association to revel in flights of oratory, was upset by the summary method of transacting business, and said at the wind-up:

"This meeting beats all I ever attended. These boys are getting too wise for me."

The Executive Committee met and appointed Oliver Shirns of Cornell manager of the coming championship meeting and H. B. Curtis, referee.

Many rumors were current among those who attended the meeting regarding the probbable changes of trainers in the different institutions. One was to the effect that "Arlie" Latham, the old baseball player, was by no means sure to have control of the University of Pennsylvania track athletes. It was stated on good authority that the Quakers were anxious to get Walter Christie to look after their men if Princeton decides to let him go.

It is practically settled that Jim Robinson, who trained the Yale football team last season, will take charge of the Tiger's football players in the future, but the track managers still hope to hold Christie for the athletic season, or in default to engage a man who, like Christie, has had practical experience in all around athleties. Al Copland, who made a success of the Yale relay teams last spring, conferred with a number of men interested in the success of the Princeton track team yesterday, and some of them appeared to favor the old hurile and broad jump champion as the successor to Christie. The situation was further complicated by the statement as the successor to Christie. The situation was further complicated by the statement attributed to one of the University of Pennsylvania's athletic leaders, that it is by no means assured that M ke Murphy will return to Yale as trainer, but may hold his present place at the University.

ing Proposed International Games. Representatives of Yale and Harvard met vesterday afternoon at the residence of H. S. Brooks, Jr., 852 Lexington avenue, and attempted to come to an agreement as to the terms of the proposed challenge to the universities of Oxford and Cambrilge for a return match at track and field athletics to take place in America next summer.

Every effort was made to keep the proceedings secret, but it was generally understood last night that the rival universities failed to agree as to the place at which the games are to be held. This has been a bone of contention between the two colleges since the return match was mooted. Yale has officially declared in favor of New York as the venue for the meeting, while Harvard has come out flatfooted for Cambridge or some other strictly

The meeting lasted more than two hours. H. Brooks declined to see a reporter for THE Sun, who called while it was in progress, and said that he would not be able to do so later. J. D. Dana, manager of the Yale track team,

J. D. Dana, manager of the Yale track team, was, however, seen on his return to the Fifth Avenue Hotel. He said at once that there was nothing to announce.

"Which means" said the reporter "that you have failed to agree on a location?"

The Yale manager looked wise, but only said he was bound in honor not to divulge anything that happened at the meeting.

The conference was the subject of general discussion among the many collegians in the hotel who had attended the Intercollegiate A. A. A. meeting in the afternoon and the prevailing opinion was that the rejuctance to announce the result of the deliberations of the joint committee was tantamount to an avowal that the dispute as to the grounds had not been settled.

This is borne out by the statement made to been settled.

This is borne out by the statement made to THE SUN reporter by the Yale graduate, H. S. Brooks, when the difficulty about the location first became known. At that time he stated that the matter was being discussed informally by the members of the Graduates Advisory committees of both universities, who would call a meeting of the captains and managers of the track teams when the matter was ripe for action.

the track teams when the matter was ripe for action.

It is now taken for granted that as no action was taken at the meeting, the breach between the two rivals has widened instead of being bridged over.

The fact that there is trouble on the location was further confirmed by a statement made last night by one of the captains of last year's teams that competed against the English universities. When asked his opinion on the situation he said: "Matters do not appear to be running as smoothly as last year. It is a pity that there should be any blokering, for if the two American universities cannot agree, it seems hardly likely that details can be arranged with the Englishmen without some trouble. There was no preliminary dispute of any kind last year and everything went along swimmingly. It certainly looks bad that a hitch should occur at this stage of the proceedings.

A suggestion was made to the former cap-hitch should occur at this stage of the pro-ceedings."

A suggestion was made to the former cap-tain that the games should take place in New York where the public would best be able to witness the contests, on which he said em-phatically, "The games certainly will not be held in New York."

From the above it would appear that Har-vard is determined not to give way in the matter, and it is a question whether Yale will hold out for New York or agree to Cam-bridge.

The century enthusiasts and mileage flends are the cyclists who feel most injured by the tardy a rrival of an old-fashioned snowstorm. To them it seems like a personal affront. It was agreed though by several who met yesterday and took it out in "talking" wheel that the snow has come too late to entirely ruin the prospect of much bigger mileage records being made in 1900 than ever before. The open weather preceding Saturday enabled the leading riders in the Century Road Club competition to get much further ahead than last year and they base their argument of a record breaking season on the fact no fall of snow at this time of the year can keep them off the roads for more than a day or two, because of the sun being so high and strong, while the number of miles already garnered will stand them in good stead and more than compensate for any such

A despatch from Cape Town published in THE SUN on Feb. 17, stating that the railroad at Sterkstroom is being patrolled by a motor cycle having a speed of thirty miles a hour, has caused much comment among those here who are interested in the practical possibilities of cycles for military uses. The fact that motor cycles built by firms of little experience here have developed on a circular track a speed considerably in excess of that mentioned left no room for doubt on the score of the speed serviceability of this type of machine in just such cases as that mentioned and it has been pointed out by comments tors that even in case of there being no good road running parallel with the railway, that a two wheeler making only a single track would usually find a bed between the two sets of ties and rails hard and smooth enough for a high rate of speed. Nearly every railroad bed affords such a cycle path, while the width of it is prohibitive of foursheeled motor vehicles and hardly sufficient for a galloping horse The question of the utility of bicycles at the front is one that has been the subject of a continuous discussion in England ever since the war in the Transvaal began. The cycling press of London has been "pegging away" in advocacy of a common sense employment of cyclists in the field and a few of the more conservative of the dailies have been paying special attention to the matter. It has recently been decided to send a scientific corps to Africa the latter part of this month. This corps is the Electrical Engineers, R. E. commanded by Major R. E. Crompton, who is prominent in the cycling field and is known here because of his strenuous advocacy of the use of long cranks. The corps numbers 330 men, of whom fifty have volunteered for service. They will receive a practical test at laying field telegraph and telephone wires. It is said by Major Crompton that three cyclists can carry three sets of instruments and enough wire to lay one mile of field telegraph in ten minutes over ground practicable for riding and in twenty-five minutes, if the cycles have to be pushed by hand. Thus six cyclists can string two miles of wire and so on. Each set of three men will carry appratus for tapping wires so that when cyclists in the field and a few of the more conservaof wire and so on. Each set of three men will carry appratus for tapping wires so that when ordered communication can be established between ordered, communication can be established between any two points. The wire will be carried on specially designed aluminum reels behind the saddles of the bicycles and the complete apparatus is said to weigh 20 per cent less than those for field telegraphing now in the service. Great confidence seems reposed in the success of this corps, but the heavier motor cycle, with its tougher tires and greater possibilities of speed and endurance, combined with the narrow path utility of the common wheel is likely to outstrip its prototype in the race for war honors. The use of the one referred to along the railroad is a peculiarly good illustration of its adaptability, where a leg-driven wheel would not be speedy enough to give due warning.

A mileage contest that is open to all riders, whether members of any organization or not is proposed by a manufacturer of coaster brakes. mileage in each month to receive a coaster brake. In April and May the competition will be continued on a weekly scale, the holder of the best mileage for each week in those months to get the prize. State records will be the standard for all decisions.

Port Huron, Mich., has received the award of the annual L. A. W. festival, which will be run this year, instead of the usual State meet. The dates selected are July 2, 3, 4 and 5. The 2d of July is Dominion Day, the third Good Roads Day, and on this occasion one mile of good macadam road will be built under the supervision of United States Government officials. July 4 will be devoted to athletic storts of all descriptions. will be devoted to athletic sports of all descrip-tions. The State championship bicycle races will also be run. July 5 the automobiles will get an opportunity to see what they can do. The cycle championships will be those of the N. C. A.

The seventh annual wheelmen's banquet of the New York A. C. took place last evening at the clubhouse. Central Park South, where covers for 100 guests were laid in the large breakfast room which was handsomely festooned with flags and banners—trophles of past victories on land and water. Prominently displayed on the spacious mantel over the flreplace were two bloycles, one of them an 1898 pattern with high wheels and wooden spokes and the other a chainless model of the present year. A pleasing incident of the evening was the presentation by the chairman to Dr. Ewen McIntyre of the club's gold medal for the greatest mileage record for 1809, the doctor having accomplished the large total 16,432 miles last year. Walter S. Wilson presided, and addresses were made by John R. Van Wormer the President of the club, Vice-President Albert E. Colfax. Comptroller Coler, Job E. edges. Simeon Ford and Bartow S. Weeks. A vaudeville concluded the entertainment. Seated at the tables were:

In looking through the long programme of events to be decided in Paris this year, it seems as if the muldle distance cracks are to be the best catered for. English sprinters who are thinking of making Paris their headquariers should not forget this, though, of course, unless one is in the very first fight and shows an exceptionally good turn of speed, Paris is best left alone, as the living expenses are sure to be high and the fastest cracks in the world will all be there. On the other hand, there is a lot of money to be won by riders of the very first rank.

His play was very steady, however, and at the critical points he was very accurate and at times speedy. Cragin got the second set and made a good light in the third, but Allen quickly ran out the match in the last set.

The championship doubles was started late in the afternoon and the light lailed utterly after two close sets had been played. Hackett and Allen, the crack pair from Yale, were opposed by Paret and Cragin, and the play furnished more excitement than the singles. The play was fast and turious, every point being fought out desperately by both sides. Paret and Cragin palled up from 3—5 in the first set only 10 lose the set by 7—5. In the second Allen's weak smashing proved a fruitful source of attack, and the New Yorkers won game after game by lobbing to the Yale champion. They got a lead of 5—3 and 40—love, and jest the game; then 5—4 and 30—love, and jest the game; Finally, however, they pulled out the next two games, after a lot of excitement, and took the set. Joe Walcott Willing to Fight Jeffries.

Joe Walcott is likely to be a thorn in the side of many of the other heavyweights now that he has vanquished Joe Choynski. Yesterday he ion, Jim Jeffries. Walcott was about town receiving the congratulations of his many against Choynski and I guess I made the vic-tory decisive enough to convice those preju-diced against me that I know a thing or two about fighting. Choynski gave me only two or three hard wallops, but I gave him some good ones in return. The only thing which bothered me in the fight was my flager, which was injured. Every time I struck a blow it pained me. But as long as I won I guess this did not amount to much."
